A few Words about Sonamukhi College & Zoology Department

Far away from the town of Bankura, Sonamukhi is a place of beautiful natural scenery and the home of many forest animals including the famous Jungle Fowl, Common Pea Fowl and Wild Boar in the surrounding deep forests. The much thicker and denser jungle of Sal-Palash-Piyal-Mohua tree is very attractive and colorful in February. Herd of Elephants has been seen occasionally in the adjacent forest because it is the migratory route of the creatures from very past.

Established by Late Anantalal Patra, the founder Principal in 1966, with the hearty cooperation of local residents, Sonamukhi College is one of the degree colleges possessing its own identity in Bankura.

The Department of Zoology in this College was established in 1979 and has achieved a significant success. Under this background, the Department of Zoology is going to organize a UGC sponsored National Level Seminar entitled "Spare the Nature; Make the Earth Green."

About the Seminar

The present status of habitat destruction and over exploitation scenario of existing Flora and Fauna is to be clearly evaluated and documented and proper steps are to be taken at all spheres for evolving suitable methodology for their preservation and development by initiating mass awareness programme to educate local people and simultaneously developing alternate income generation programme in various allied sectors – in a sustainable manner. The theme of the Seminar is very important and relevant in the contemporary global perspective.

The forest-rich area demands such Seminar and awareness programme to upgrade environmental literacy among common people and students as well, through series of discussion which will certainly enrich their knowledge multidimensionally.

The Symposium will also comprise of Oral, Poster and Video-Photographic presentation, relevant to the theme.

Who can participate?

Teachers, researchers, academicians, students from various fields and all nature lovers and nature workers, NGO members are welcome to participate and share their valuable knowledge.
